

DISTRIBUTION OF SECURED INFORMATION

ABSTRACT

Secured information is stored on a server accessible to a network. A first access component that is required to permit
5 use of the secured information is distributed to a delegate.
In the absence of a second access component, the first access component is not sufficient to permit use of the secured information. The second access component can be stored on the server or stored with a third party for distribution to the 10 delegate.

20227318.doc